THE EVENING STAR. WASHINGTON: SATURDAY ...... February 21, 1885.

CROSBY S. NOYES .Editor. The Evening Star has a regular, permanent bona fide daily circulation more than treble that of any other daily paper published in Washington, and equal to that of all the other daily papers here added together.

The proceedings of this day break in upon the routine of life to remind us of a noble and useful character. History has been defined as the biography of a few men, and no list of these few and essential individuals would be too small and select to exclude the name of Wash-Ington. That name has become a proverb for honor, constancy and true benevolence. Not brilliant, and not popular, as the world commonly uses the words, his life teaches us the elements of real dignity of character. The great plain shaft which the nation has raised to this illustrious man, and dedicates today to his memory, fitly illustrates his place and work. It will be a perpetual reminder to the world of that upright, lofty and serene character to whom Providence entrusted the conduct of a new cause in history. The war for independence marks the beginning of a new epoch in human progress, and it was fit that this time should bring forth a typical man to explain its meanings. The monument may crumble;-at best it is only an emblem. But Washington himself shall live, and while he lives the triumph of the cause | SSS of political liberty is secure:

"While stands the Coliseum, Rome shall stand; When falls the Coliseum, Rome shall fall; And when Rome falls, the world."

Gladstone finds himself confronted by a more unrelenting enemy than the mahdi or dynamite; "for age," says Bacon, "will not be defied." A vigorous constitution, a judicious life and a good conscience have lengthened out his plainly now nearing its limit. His doctor tells PPP span beyond that given to most men, but he is him bluntly that he must choose between office and life. The desperate emergencies of the time require more vigorous powers than remain to the great liberal leader, and he must yield the state into younger hands. It is to be regretted that a career so noble in its outlines should end in a cloud of unpopularity; but time will clear and correct the view. Modern England has no more illustrious figure than that of Gladstone.

If Congress had made a national celebration of the dedication of the Washington monument instead of a private entertainment, and fixed the time for it at a season when good instead of bad weather might have been counted on as a with greater comfort as well as by larger numbers. Personal vanity in high places carried bers. much finer, and it would have been enjoyed the day, however, and presumably those who | SSS had their way are happy. As for the public and its wishes and interests, they are small matters with those in power-except about election

The newspapers and politicians are hard at work trying to get that $100 prize for naming Cleveland's cabinet, and some "right smart" guessing has been done. The prophets are pretty well agreed as to Bayard, Garland and Manning, and most of them believe that Lamar is to be a fourth. Thurman's chances are held to be fair, and so are those of Vilas and Abbott. The paraders to-day know how it feels to go on an Arctic relief expedition. A good deal like "that 4th of March," isn't it?
